

Prayer vs. Airplanes
Big Liquor Bill
Cash for 3 Things
John Swadling's Dog

By Arthur Brisbane
AFTER the great display by army airplanes over New York city, many clergymen preached sermons denouncing the exhibition, saying there should be no fighting airplanes. Everything should be lovely and peaceful. So it should be, and so it isn't.

What would the clergymen suggest as a substitute for airplanes in case of war? Would they suggest prayer?

In another war, as in the late war, there would be praying on both sides, and sincere praying. How dare we assume that our prayers would be more efficacious than the prayers of others? What do we know about the Divine mind?

At best the result must be uncertain. On the other hand, there is no uncertainty about airplanes. Their speed, carrying capacity, the power of bombs and poisons that they would drop can be calculated definitely.

The people of the United States spend almost three billions of dollars a year with the bootleggers of the country. The exact amount mentioned is $2,848,000,000, and that places bootlegging among the biggest industries, on a par with the automobile and other great businesses.

The amount does not include home-brewing or home distilling, which might double the total. The worst of it is the kind of drinking. Of the total paid to bootleggers $12,000,000,000 goes for whiskey and gin. The country spends now for "hard liquor" three times as much as it did before the war.

Good times or bad, men will find money for three things, RACING, GAMBLING, and SEX. And the worst of the three is gambling.

The Irish Sweepstakes, to help to build Irish hospitals—total $1,500,000. Hospitals will get more than $3,000,000, gamblers about $9,000,000, expenses will eat the rest. There will be many prizes of $100,000, and smaller prizes, totaling 4000 prizes in all.

Five millions have bought tickets, and whether they win or lose, they are a little nearer to the certainty that they will make any amount of money. Gambling prevents that. And the chances are more than 1000 to one against winning any prize.

John Swadling, 66 years old, will surely march in the Oklahoma Memorial Day parade next Saturday, but is not quite about his dot. Teddy.

The faithful creature is 23 years old, and Mr. Swadling says, "That's pretty good for a dog, but that is young for a man." Ninety-five really will be a good age for a dog to come. Each mammal lives for a certain time, and it is the duty of the parent to reproduce its kind, some much longer.

Man, therefore, should live to 150, and be able after 100 years to work to say, "I have done my work." Now for 50 years of relaxation, to think, see the earth, contemplate the stars.

Gen. Von Ludendorff predicts another European war in July, "more ferocious and disastrous than the World War." England, allied with Italy, would attack and blockade France.

Fortunately, it is only a nightmare. England knows too much about the war to undertake any blockading, how out of date so far as Europe is concerned. French airmen would fly over the British ships, sink them on the way, and move on to destroy London, Liverpool and Manchester.

To say, as Ludendorff does, that the next war will be worse than the last, is to discuss an uncertainty. We don't know yet how bad the last war was. And we don't know what the next war, born of that war, is, or even.

Thompson Pleads Guilty to the Second Degree Murder of His Aunt in Sausage
Lawrence, May 26—Bernard S. Thompson, 23, of Dorchester today followed the trail blazed yesterday by Russell Noble, pleading guilty to second-degree murder and going to state prison for life.

Young Thompson blackballed his wealthy aunt, Mrs. Catherine Edith Wight, in her Sausage home, last July, and stuffed velvet into her throat to gag her, she said, the end of the blows and strangulation.

As far as the police know, all he got was $4, though his motive was robbery.

"Guilty in the second degree," he said in clear, firm tones when asked what he had to say to the indictment.

It seemed you to have labor for the remainder of your natural life. In making his plea he stood in the same spot where the Noble boy stood yesterday, and once again the Essex Superior courtroom was filled to capacity.

Haverhill Slayer Meets Prison
Mates in Charlestown
For First Time

Russell Noble, 17-year-old former Haverhill Sunday school student, came out of solitary confinement today and mingled for the first time with the other 800 prisoners at State Prison in Charlestown.

The youth who arrived at the prison yesterday as a "flier," following his plea of second degree murder in Lawrence Superior Court, met his fellow inmates during the recreation period in the prison yard.

RIGHT IN SOLITARY.
And they gazed upon him curiously—the "baby" of the prison, with his shock of blonde, curly hair and half-mile playing about his lips.

Noble had spent last night and part of the day in solitary confinement in the Cherry Hill block of the State penitentiary, as required by his sentence, but the lonely ordeal appeared not to have affected his cheer at all.

The solitary cell he ate a simple breakfast of rice, milk, bread and coffee, and he held his time patiently until taken out and brought before Deputy Warden Herman Condon for the first time with a new prisoner.

This included interview with the prison chaplain, the phenologist, the psychiatrist and the prison physician, and the preparing of Noble's life chart, detailing his career from the time of his birth and going through the murder of Mrs. Clara B. C. Hill, wealthy Haverhill widow, which he admitted guilty yesterday.

MINGLES WITH PRISONERS.
Then, these little formalities over, Noble was "paroled" in the prison yard until recreation period came, when he was taken out into the prison yard to mingle with his fellows as the 800 and youngest prisoners and the 100 and oldest.

It probably will be Saturday or Monday before the "model boy" of Haverhill is assigned a task at the prison, according to Deputy Warden Condon, and he expects to know to what job until after he has studied Noble's chart.

At 10 o'clock, Noble arrived here yesterday at State Prison, after coming from the Essex County Jail, where he had been held since his arrest.

HIS MOTHER'S FADES.
A smile was on his face as he mingled with the other prisoners, and he was seen to shake hands with one of the men who kept him in the Essex County Jail.

The smile faded, however, when he saw the men who were taking pictures, and he half turned away from them. He was then taken up to the Cherry Hill block, where he was taken to his cell.

Wellfleet, May 26 (AP)—Miss Susie King, 33, was killed and four other persons injured today as a sedan plunged from the highway, crashed through a wooden fence and turning over, struck a pole.

Miss King, crushed in the wreckage, died almost instantly. Her body could not be extricated until a wrecking car arrived, almost an hour later. She was the chief operator of the Wellfleet telephone exchange.

Philip McCall, 35, of Wellfleet, operator of the car, received a fracture of the arm. William B. Smith, 27, and John M. McDougall, 45, both of Wellfleet, and a woman companion, whose names were not ascertained by the police, received minor cuts and bruises.

State police from the Barnstable barracks said their investigation indicated the car was traveling fast as it rounded a curve at the foot of a hill and that tracks indicated it traveled 80 feet from the highway.

No Fight, No Vote

Washington, May 26—The battle over naturalization of conscientious objectors today was transferred from the Supreme Court to Congress as a result of the high court's decision to four decisions that the present naturalization oath requires aliens to fight in time of war before they may be naturalized.

Congress, it is pointed out, both the majority opinion of Justice Sutherland and the minority opinion of Justice Hughes, has the power to prescribe conditions on which aliens may obtain citizenship.

Spokesman for the Friends of the Constitution, who are opposed to the bill, said that the bill would be a "disgrace" to the country.

SENTENCE FOR THOMPSON

Archie N. Frost read the first degree indictment.

Willie-Atty. Hugh A. Gregg was dissenting to the plea, he said. He said the plea was "not quite normal."

This young man is a nephew of the indicted woman, said the judge. He was out of work and in need of money.

"She was found on the sun porch of her home in Saugus with a child at her feet. She was found with a child at her feet. She was found with a child at her feet.

A blackjack was on the bureau. Thompson said he had made the blackjack two weeks before for the purpose of holding somebody up because he was short of money. He said he had taken the money from the house.

In view of the state's statement that he was not quite normal, I am willing that his plea be accepted. I move for acquittal.

SAW PRISON FILM.
Thompson killed Mrs. Wright, his father's sister, on July 13. He sneaked back to the house the next day to see if she was dead. Then he hid for a day.

Thompson said he had seen a "movie" in Boston and saw a prison film. The scenes of prison life applied to him. He was dead. Then he hid for a day.

Naughty Hens! Their Still Burns 'Em Out of House and Home

A henhouse isn't always used to keep hens in, Lexington police and firemen learned today when explosion of a still wrecked and then burned a 75-foot henhouse on the farm of Kenneth Walcott off Follen rd.

When firemen arrived, they gave up the blazing henhouse as something just to be reeled to memory and devoted their attention, successfully, to saving the house and barn on either side of the structure that sheltered the wrong kind of "nesting hens."

When police arrived, however, they devoted their attention strictly to Walcott and arrested him on a charge of illegally manufacturing liquor.

WOMAN IS GIVEN $1125 BURNED HAIR VERDICT

Mrs. Agnes W. Dugan Sued for $50,000 for Damage After Permanent Wave

A Suffolk court jury today awarded Mrs. Agnes W. Dugan of High st., Medford, $1125 for injuries suffered from a permanent wave machine at a Winter st. beauty parlor.

Mrs. Dugan and Mrs. Mary R. Rooney, proprietor of the shop, for $50,000.

Trial began yesterday and the case went to the jury in Judge James E. Donnelly's session about 11:30 a. m. The jury was out less than three hours.

Mrs. Dugan contended she suffered harm to her scalp and eyes as the result of a permanent wave administered by a Mrs. McManis, a sister of Mrs. Rooney, and that she has paid $800 for medical treatment.

Mrs. Rooney denied liability, on the ground that Mrs. McManis was not her agent, and also averred that Mrs. Dugan was negligent in following advice given by her (Mrs. Rooney).

With one defendant a suicide and another missing, four others went on trial today in federal court, charged with a liquor conspiracy in connection with a federal raid on the drug store of Jeremiah F. Donovan in Washington st., South End, several weeks ago.

Four or five men seated in the back room, the agents said, told him they had "just dropped in."

Judge Charles A. Walsh of the Superior Court, who is to preside at the trial, is personally supervising the preparations.

ROBBED PARENT IN CHARGE IN WILL CONTEST

Walcott Heiress Says She Told Father Girl Was a Disgrace to Family

Charge that her younger sister, Mrs. Madeline Walcott Sanborn, former Parian actress, stole her mother's diamonds when a young girl, was made today in Middlesex Superior Court by Mrs. Helen Grace Walcott Forbush of Natick.

The charge came during strenuous cross-examination by Robert M. Bushnell in the million-dollar will contest being made by Mrs. Sanborn, who was left only $125,000 in trust by her father, John W. Walcott, in the will.

Mrs. Forbush also asserted in cross-examination that she believed the father's gardener would lie in court in favor of Mrs. Sanborn, because Mrs. Sanborn once had given the gardener's crippled child a present.

KEPT RECORD OF FRANKS

Atty. Bushnell drew from Mrs. Forbush an admission that when her sister was only 19, Mrs. Forbush kept a careful record of all the younger sister's pranks and alleged misdeeds.

Q—Did you accuse your sister of stealing money from you? A—I never accused her of stealing money, but I accused her then, and I accuse her now, of stealing my mother's diamonds.

Mrs. Forbush admitted also that when the younger sister was expelled from school as a girl, Mrs. Forbush had told her father that the sister was "a disgrace to the family."

FEELS "PITY" FOR SISTER

Although admitting she did not want the sister in Natick, Mrs. Forbush denied in her testimony today that she took any means to prevent Mrs. Sanborn visiting her father. She was cross-examined by Robert M. Bushnell, counsel for Mrs. Sanborn.

Q—Did you love your sister? A—

Q—Did you ever cease to love your sister? A—I pitied her.

Q—Do you love your sister now? A—I pity her and I feel sorry for her.

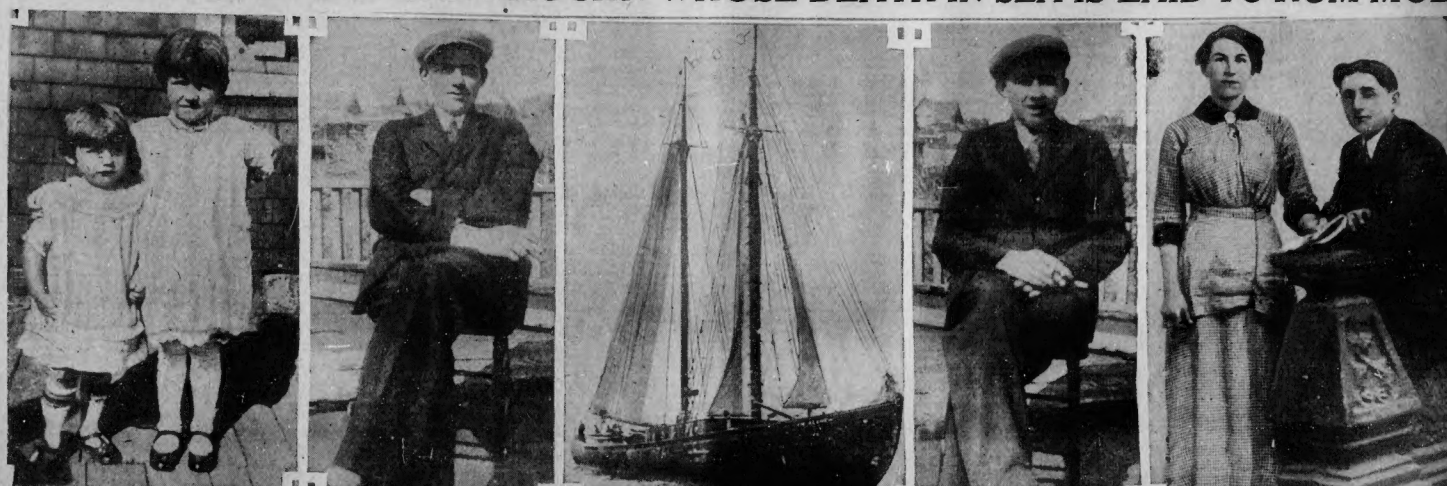

Q—Did you love your sister when your father was dying and did you notify her? A—I did not think anything about my sister when my father was dying.

Q—From the time she was married until your father's death you did not want her back in Natick, did you? A—No.

Q—You want every man on your command to keep her away from Natick? A—I did not.

Q—You did not want your sister in Natick when her child was born? A—I did not.

On rum row, 28 miles off Provincetown, on a night of fog, Duncan Haughn, who found rum-running more profitable than going down to the sea for fish, met death, and 21 days later his body floated in at Scorton Beach, at East Sandwich. His two daughters, Isabella, then an infant, and Daisy, and his two sons, Murray and Oswald, and Mrs. Sadie Haughn, his wife, were at their home in Lunenburg, N. S., that night, probably thinking of their loved one as his body slid from the deck of a rum-craft into the cold sea. Was Duncan Haughn slain, as alleged, because the rum mob wrongfully thought he was an agent of the Department of Justice? The Masked Reporter, delving into the underworld, has brought back some startling facts bearing on this case and on the case of the notorious craft, I'm Alone, a time queen of the rum ships, which was seized in the Gulf of Mexico. Intense, fatal complications were threatened as a result of the seizure.

OLLIE HAS NEW SLEDGE SQUAD

He swung many a husky sledge hammer against double-lashed speakeasy doors in the old days, but now Oliver B. Garrett, without a personal sledge, is foremost of a prisoners' gang at Deer Island, assigned to demolishing an old prison building.

This is according to a report that circulated in City Hall today, but regarding which city officials preferred to have no working knowledge.

When Garrett, ex head of the police headquarters liquor squad, led his men on a raid, it was Garrett, who usually assaulted the barred doors with the heavy sledgehammer—and he took an interest in his work.

A foreman on the Deer Island demolition job, pulling down the old building that was burned several years ago, he does not have to sell his hands or even lift one of the huge beaming hammers.

Finis, Commissioner William O'Hare when questioned about the report said he had no knowledge of a change in Garrett's work at Deer Island.

"No far so I know," said Commissioner O'Hare, "he is still on the job he was assigned to when he went to the island—sledgehammering. I have not heard of any change in his classification."

New York, May 25 (AP)—The Emir of Kurdistan, who says he is Al Raschid, born in Detroit, is trying to make the United States stop deporting him.

With the aid of Ali, Arthur Ganaway, Hays, Raschid appeared before Judge Bondy. Hays said: "We don't care whether he is a grandson, or even the grandfather of the Queen of Sheba. We would merely that he was born in Detroit, and is therefore an American citizen and frequent deportations are thus an outrage."

FREEDOM FOR GIRL HOLDS MAN IN AUTO THEFT

Toscanini, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, today was expected to receive permission to leave Milan, after assuring the prefect there that he refused to play the Fascist National Anthem at a recent concert was an unintentional slight.

Toscanini, who was attacked by the audience following his refusal to play the anthem at the Bologna concert, said the anthem was not good music.

A party 21-year-old girl came out of Sherborn Reformatory today to testify against the man who said was responsible for her imprisonment.

As a result of the testimony given by Phyllis Sullivan before Judge Goff in Municipal court, Salvatore Barroca, of East Boston, was held for the Grand Jury in $3000 charged with the larceny of an automobile, last November.

Miss Sullivan is serving sentence for unlawful appropriation of the machine, the property of Eleanor Benson, Worcester st., Wellesley.

In court, Miss Sullivan testified that she met Barroca in Charlestown one night last November. "He invited me for a ride" she said. "He drove me to Boston and then disappeared, leaving the automobile with just 12 and the machine for three or four days."

Today is the real estate business of the Charlestown job with real estate of the person for profitable investment.

Consider your Adam's Apple!! Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

When you visit your physician for your periodic health examination, one of the very first things he asks you to do is to open your mouth wide, and to say "Ah." He is examining the delicate lining of your throat. "Ah!" There is not a man or woman who could even make this simple sound, if in the throat there were no Adam's Apple. For your Adam's Apple is your larynx—the voice box containing your vocal chords. And what a delicate piece of Nature's handiwork the Adam's Apple is. A slight cold—even a tiny particle lodged in the throat—and our voice often grows husky. In acute cases, we may even lose our voice for several days. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder 20,679 American physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating. LUCKIES are always kind to your throat. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

LUCKIES are always
kind to your throat

SO MANY VINCENT CLUB GIRLS HAVE BEEN MENTIONED the past few months and so many of their number will be mentioned in the month of roses that we think it would be interesting to tell you what the coveted V. C. means.

The Vincent Club was started in the very early '90s to raise money for the Vincent Hospital, which had been established in memory of Mrs. Vincent, the much-loved actress. Miss Lucy Derby asked a few of her friends to meet at her house to discuss this plan.

They sought the approval of Dr. Phillips Brooks who gave his hearty endorsement to the project thereby bringing together for the first time in Boston the church and the stage, at least to our knowledge. Money did not count for a cent in those good old days—it was what you could do for the chosen few and what could you contribute in fun and talent.

The plays were given in the Back Bay houses to begin with, a stage was set up between the bay-windows in the back parlors and at first only the mothers, aunts and grandmothers were allowed to look on. The costumes were always impromptu.

One of the well-remembered plays was the "Rajah's Daughter." Members wrote plays and there was keen competition—you simply had to have talent. Nowadays they have what is called a "working chorus," where the debutante drifts on in satin, lace and jewels and forgets to smile at the $3 per seat spectator.

Plays Once Given in Copley Hall

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS, THE MUSIC AND LYRICS were home talent and the purveyors of amorous stimuli was a local orchestra. It must have been nice. The girls were featured and not the producer, and expense was always considered. Later the plays were given in Copley Hall—a step calling for much cogitation and nervous forebodings—Copley Hall, that long, low building on Clarendon st., where so many debutante balls were held 20 years ago, now torn down and on its site is the Y. W. C. A.

PUBLICITY: THERE WAS none. Just Miss Dabney's posters were placed in selected shop windows. "Today the publicity runs into thousands of dollars."

One of the first presidents was the late Mrs. George C. Lee (Jackson). Mrs. (Madeline) Stanley Parker (Duffy Porter), was secretary. She will never be forgotten for her humorous monologues. Another well known and beloved president was Eleanor Sears. Other prominent charter members were Olga Gardiner (Mrs. George H. Menck), Miss Frances Curtis, Mrs. Phillip Sears, Mrs. Roylance Real, Mrs. Guy Lowell and Mrs. Moses Williams.

"THOSE WERE THE DAYS when governesses and maids always went with their little mistresses and sat in the dressing rooms until the show was over. Carey Dabney, the late Mrs. Augustin H. Parker, designed the poster and cover for the program. It has been used ever since and even today the ushers are always frocked like the "girl on the poster."

WHAT CHANGES TIME brings. Thirty debutantes was a large number in the nineties and only 10 or 15 were taken into the very exclusive Vincent Club. Now out of 120 bids 50 are elected to membership—this year there will be 40 invited at the first election and 20 at the second election.

IN THAT AGE THE NAMES of the new members were discussed by the "Hush" committee, and if they were passed on unannounced, their names were then put up to the club-at-large. The question is today, why do and why do not some girls "make" the Vincent Club. It's a question. We can only say that a debutante makes it "because of" or "in spite of" whatever it is.

Trim Lines in New Outdoor Clothes

By ANN ARDEN
ABOUT THE time that graduation exercises come along, there are all sorts of picnic and parties and weekends that demand their special clothes.

WHITE AND white with color is the rage of the moment. It is so perfectly satisfactory as a summertime uniform, that no one will complain of its popularity.

KNITTED SUITS, knitted frocks and some knitted ensembles in more formally tailored guises than those found on the golf course, will find smart places on the sidelines at all events.

THE BLUE and white costume will be sure of a high rating, for, you know, blue is the big color for spring and summer. The bougie knit three-piece suit pictured is white, irregularly striped in navy blue. The white Panama hat has its brim cut short across back, the crown tucked and banded in blue ribbon. The bag of navy patent leather is outlined in hand of white; the necklace and bracelet alternate blue and white beads. The washable white gloves are of a fashionable roominess and wide over the wrists. Tug pumps are perforated white buck, trimmed in brown calf.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAR.

HOW I RID MYSELF OF PSORIASIS

Write and I will tell you my own story as to how I rid myself of this disease without medical treatment, salvers or incisions.

E. O. M. 11, Box 117, Woodside, N. Y.

"Come on!"

SOME DAY, and soon, we Americans must snap out of it. The business depression started almost two years ago. A long time for gloom to cover America. Long, long, too long.

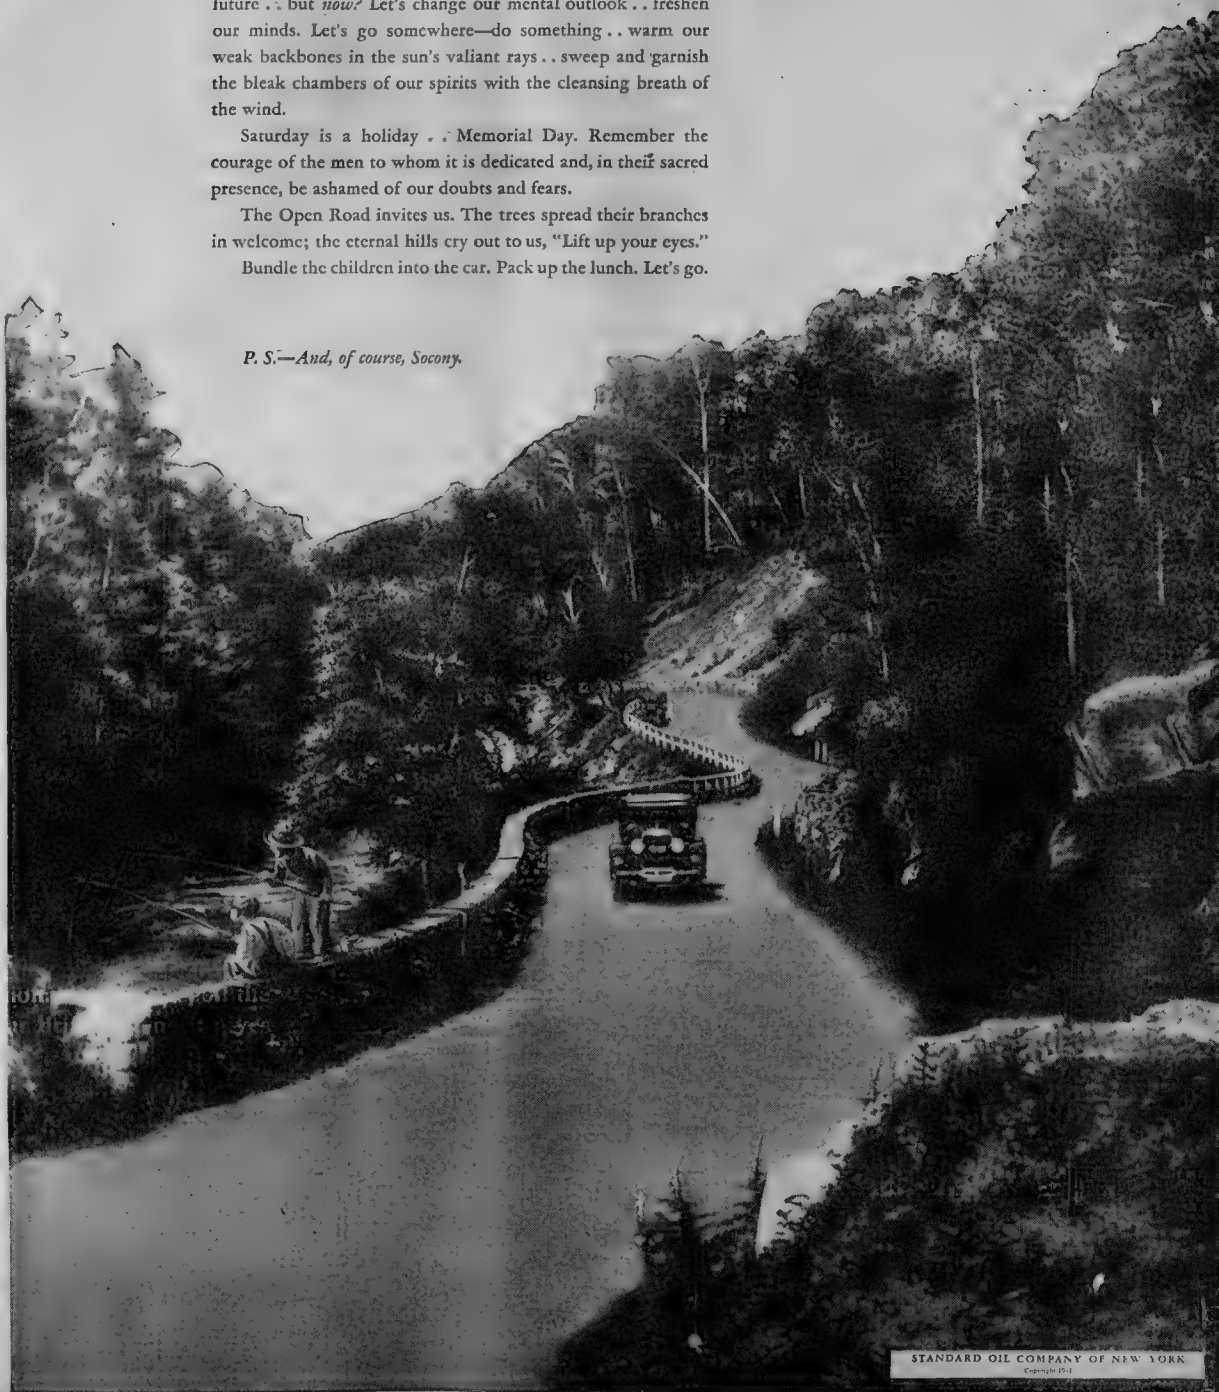

Why can't we get going again . . . not sometime in the vague future . . . but now? Let's change our mental outlook . . . freshen our minds. Let's go somewhere—do something . . . warm our weak backbones in the sun's valiant rays . . . sweep and garnish the bleak chambers of our spirits with the cleansing breath of the wind.

Saturday is a holiday . . . Memorial Day. Remember the courage of the men to whom it is dedicated and, in their sacred presence, be ashamed of our doubts and fears.

The Open Road invites us. The trees spread their branches in welcome; the eternal hills cry out to us, "Lift up your eyes."

Bundle the children into the car. Pack up the lunch. Let's go.

DAILY TRUE STORY MAN OVERBOARD

"SO YOU CAME LIKE I TOLD YOU," THE CAPTAIN CRIED

EVERY ONE in Lansdown knew Capt. Bassett—they also knew the pretty wife he had married when her father was in imminent danger of losing his farm.

Capt. Bassett was not exactly the kind of man you would picture as a lover. He was 35 years older than Elsie and the neighbors said that the only time his wife was happy was when he was on his schooner.

Bassett might have thought he was in love when he asked Elsie to marry him, but he showed his affection in a queer way, for he made her life what might be termed a domestic hell all the time he was home.

She never complained—no one ever heard her say a word—but the roses in her cheeks disappeared during the first year of her married life and Bassett told her brutally he'd show her who was master in the house.

It was hard enough for Elsie when she thought of what might have been if she had married Ned Wilson—Ned had one disadvantage—that he didn't have money enough to save the little farm that Elsie's father had tilled all his life.

The day Bassett asked her to marry him—agreeing to pay off the mortgage—Ned met Elsie and they took a long walk. They sat by the sea and talked, and Elsie almost hysterical explained the situation to Ned.

"You know I love you, Ned," she said, "I've asked to marry the captain—but what can I do? There's father—he's been home and father told him that I am him turned out of his home? What could he do?"

Ned couldn't answer that question—there wasn't any answer because he wasn't earning enough to support two, let alone three.

She folded her arms and kissed her long and passionate and like a couple of lost souls they walked back to the town and ran into the Captain on the way.

Perhaps Bassett didn't know Ned's love for Elsie, but here for him, but it was plain enough to him after seeing them together. But he didn't say a word till after the wedding: now he faced his bride and laid down the law.

Threatens to School Captain Enraged at Her

"You think I'm a fool," he roared when they were alone in the living room of the little farmhouse, "but I know you're in love with Ned Wilson, but by the great Lord Harry, you'll mine one and I'll shoot him on sight if I ever hear of his coming within a mile of this place."

Elsie raised terrified eyes to his blazing ones. "Yes," she said, "Why should I tell you a lie? But that doesn't mean I shall ever be unfaithful to you."

"I'm your wife and I'll never do anything you need be ashamed of," Bassett glared at her just as he glared at his men aboard the Sarah Jane.

"You're right you won't," he said, "and just because I'm going to sea between whiles, don't think you can get away with anything."

A strange wedding—Elsie was often in the days that followed for nothing she could do please the captain. He stormed at her, he roared at her father and before he went away in the Sarah Jane he installed Squid Quick, one of his sailors, in the house—a hired hand who was really a spy—an eavesdropping ear with one eye whose real duty was to keep an eye on Elsie and report to the captain.

Thing She Dreaded
Life on the Sarah Jane

The Sarah Jane plied between coast ports and Bassett was at odd intervals, each time threatening to take his wife with him. That was the thing that Elsie dreaded most of all—she knew that the Sarah Jane—Squid knew it, too.

It had begun to feel sorry for her. But it wasn't until after the captain's third trip that he had anything to report.

And then it was only that he had seen Elsie pass the time of day with Ned Wilson.

It was enough for Bassett. In a blind fury he struck her and in a terrible voice threatened dire things to follow as she ran weeping from the room. Squid swallowed hard.

Captain discipline men aboard the Sarah Jane, but he held his tongue.

Luckily for Elsie the captain died for a quick trip and there was taken sick. Elsie took care of him. For several days he hovered between life and death

THE BUILDING IN USE FOR 74 YEARS

Two-Story Wooden Structure,
Erected Before Civil War,
Lacks Fire Escapes

The survey by the Boston Evening American in the interests of more and better public schools for the children of Boston shows there is much room for improvement in the Dorchester district.

Many of the school buildings there may well be called firetraps and should be replaced by modern, fireproof structures, that will ensure the safety and health of the boys and girls compelled to attend them.

One of the most obsolete public school buildings in the Dorchester district is the old Edward Everett structure in Willis st., Uphams Corner. It has been in constant use as a school for 74 years, and, according to the American's survey, it is about time it was abandoned.

IS WOODEN FIRETRAP
The building is of three-class construction, type that should not be permitted to house children in these modern days. It may have been considered all right before the Civil War, but it has no place in a well-schooled school service today.

The building is constructed entirely of wood and is equipped with old-fashioned lattice system of sanitation.

This system is regarded as obsolete by school authorities with vision as well as health authorities interested in the welfare of little children.

The old Edward Everett school district is the John Marshall school in Boston, and although it is one of the oldest public schools in Boston, and although it has a brick veneer exterior, it does not contain fire escapes and is regarded by Dorchester parents who are compelled to send their children there as totally unfit for school purposes.

The school is located in the busiest street in Dorchester, badly placed, for that reason, as the 200 children who attend are in frequent danger from fire engines and other traffic that is too thoroughfare.

The condemned lattice system is in effect there.

Another bad feature of the school is the fact that the yard is more than five feet below the level of the ground.

In connection with the danger to the pupils, parents point out that Mrs. Higgins is housed only 350 feet away from the school building, which increases the danger from accidents materially, as the children who attend the school range in age from four to ten years of age.

Three Are Fined in Building Law Drive
The drive against violators of building laws netted three fines today in municipal court, for alleged failure to comply with building department orders that more means of egress be provided.

Michael T. Donnan, of Monument st., Charlestown, a lodging house proprietor, was fined $20; Henry Gabriel of Salem st., North End, was fined the same amount; and Mary A. Stemark of East Broadway was fined $10.

CONSTIPATION BRINGS MANY ILLS

The figure on the awaying side has doubled.

Bassett wanted a reply; he roared over and jerked off the cushion hat and found himself staring into the eyes of Squid.

"Dunno you," he snarled, "what trick is this?"

"I'm not trick," said Squid calmly. "I just allowed I was tired of being snarled—and here I am."

"Get the hell out of here," yelled the captain. "I'll show you who's master of this ship!"

To a volley of oaths Squid preceded him out of the cabin on to the slippery deck of the rolling Sarah Jane. It was dark and chilly; Bassett's heavy boots caught him on the shin. Squid grabbed the rail. His one leg made him go hard.

Then, Bassett was on to him. They clinched and Squid's fingers found the captain's throat.

"No dot," gasped Squid, "you women hate—no hell with you—no you or me!" and with a sudden effort he buried the captain's head over the rail, and stood staring at the big waves heaved under.

The Sarah Jane, under full sail, had gone many a ship's length before Squid yelled, "Don't let go!"

"No dot," gasped Squid, "you women hate—no hell with you—no you or me!" and with a sudden effort he buried the captain's head over the rail, and stood staring at the big waves heaved under.

"Children," he said, "the captain's dead—drowned like a rat in a fire—overboard—now you go on up and tell his widow—and say for me—if I'd ever had a mother I'd be like her in the hell, but you want me no more."

Each generation of Harvard men grow taller, heavier, but have less hip girth than their fathers. The same goes for the girls of Wellesley, Smith and other girls' colleges. The girls are heavier, taller and exceed in every measurement except breadth of hips.

This has all been made known by Gordon T. Bowles, of Tokio, Japan, a graduate student in the department of anthropology at Harvard. His research has been in progress for months.

LONG MAY JOIN EX-HARVARD MAN IS AGAIN IN COURT

George C. Cheever, 23, of West Boylston, former student of Harvard, was in court again today for alleged larceny—the second time within a year.

This time Cheever was given a suspended sentence of one month in the House of Correction for alleged larceny of $16 from the Hotel Statler Feb. 28 by means of a worthless check drawn on the Harvard Trust Co. of Cambridge.

Last August young Cheever was arrested at Coast by state troops and charged with the larceny of a cash register from the W. & M. Garage in West Boylston.

Cheever was declared to have admitted he and another youth broke into the garage because Cheever needed money for train fare to go to Brooklyn to see a girl.

The cash register was carried from the garage up the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks for 200 yards, but before the thieves could open the cash register they were frightened away.

In district court at Worcester, because of that escape, Cheever was held in $500 for the grand jury after he pleaded guilty to the larceny charge.

LIVER DEATH CRASH BLAME ADMITTED BY TUG CAPTAIN

IGNORED LANES LAID OUT FOR STEAMBOATS

Ir'mount Skipper Says in the U. S. Probe He Didn't Approve Rules

The government department of steamship inspection today launched an investigation into the crash of the steamer New York and the tugboat Trimount in Long Island Sound, which cost the lives of three of the tugboat's crew on the night of May 7.

Capt. Cecil Bethel of the Trimount admitted on the stand before Capt. Charles M. Lyons, conducting the hearing, that the crash would not have occurred had his vessel followed the former lanes laid out in its second following the Eastface collision last June.

"Why, then, did you not follow the lanes?" he was asked.

"Because I do not approve of them," Capt. Bethel replied. "In rough weather they are useless."

Other members of the Trimount crew who described the crash were Engineer Julius Lind, John Lewis and Nordal Bow. The burden of their testimony was to the effect that Capt. Bethel was directing navigation at the time of the accident and that a heavy fog was responsible for the fatal collision.

Capt. Lyons adjourned the hearing until Thursday, when the master and crew of the New York will be questioned.

ST. CLOSING

New York, May 19—Prices were mixed at the close in Wall St. today.

Announcement of another inquiry into the business activity by the stock exchanges committee today, and the conduct caused further of uneasy sentiment, but failed to check the upward movement.

WEAK IN SPOTS

The bid had a substantial rally during the middle of the afternoon, but turned weak in spots in the last hour. Trading was in moderate volume.

U. S. Steel closed about a point to a new low at 50 1/2 in the morning, but recovered to 51 1/2 by noon, and Bethlehem was firm.

American Metal Market estimates that steel production had fallen another 2 points to 47 per cent of capacity.

American Corn surged up 4 points, and closed up 2 1/2. American Telephone and Woolworth gained 2 net.

Unfavorable developments in foreign markets, such as the suspension of a small London Stock Exchange house, and the fact that the dollar is in Berlin market, were within 1/2 point.

The selling in Berlin, however, was not a notable influence in Wall St. The selling in Berlin, however, was not a notable influence in Wall St.

Despite the better tone in the New York market, however, brokers' circles at the close were gloomy over prospects for the near future.

Yesterday's advice indicating that the motor industry has reached its seasonal peak, further selling in the automotive shares during today's session.

Current estimates of General Motors second quarter earnings, that the dividend requirements for the first six months of the year will have been fully satisfied, and the first dividend in the first quarter.

On the basis of the preliminary figures, the weekly production of automobiles will be less than 100,000, and those of the preceding week, when a large decline in crude output was achieved.

A further cut in East Texas crude prices has been made by American, but there is some talk of an increase in California.

Royal Dutch's annual report is less gloomy over the American situation than some Dutch circles seem to be, despite the large losses recently suffered by the company's subsidiary.

The board of directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad today voted the regular dividends on the several classes of stock, the first preferred and preferred shares of the railroad, and the common stock of June 10. Action on the common stock dividend was deferred.

The directors authorized the following statement: "Under all the circumstances, it is the opinion of the majority of the board that the wise course is to defer action on the common stock dividend at this time, with the idea of paying during the year dividends upon the common stock as earned, rather than in anticipation of earnings."

In such a year, the directors feel it will be proper to pay out in dividends the amount of the net earnings up to 84 per share on the common stock, and on the last estimate of gross earnings that they are able to make, expect that the earnings will be sufficient to enable them to pay at least 84 per share, of which $1 was paid April 1st.

Grains are Higher in Chicago Market Chicago, May 19—Advancing tendencies ruled the grain market during most of the session today. Active wheat futures closed 1/2 day 1/2 to 3/4 higher, inactive options unchanged to 1/2 higher and corn 1/2 to 3/4 higher, while rye moved up 1/2 to 3/4.

Humble Oil Cuts Prices for Crude New York, May 19—Humble Oil & Refining Co. has reduced prices of East Texas crude oil 50 cents a barrel. Action was interpreted in oil circles as an additional effort on the part of the company to reduce the flow from this new field.
